Empson Family Page

The Empson Family Page was created and hosted by Mark Empson in conjunction with LMPhotonics.com

The objects of the Empson Family page are to provide an information base with information of interest to the international Empson family. Any information that can be added would be very gratefully received and added.

There is a forum on this site that is free to use. First you must register on the forum, and then you can post any information and/or questions that you may have.

The Genealogy database is a collection of family threads that I have been given. There are many holes and many duplications, but I feel that it is better to provide all the raw data that I have rather than apply my own filters.

This is a free site to all users.

Anyone who would like to assist in the moderation of the site, please feel free to contact me via the contact page.

Best regards,

Mark Empson, New Zealand.
